Beautiful amp up for sale, sounds awesome. Its like having a 30 watt 2 channel Fender blues junior with an effects loop! These are no longer made in America and getting harder to find. I have the Peavey badge for the front grill. Its a 1x12 30 watt tube amp with spring reverb an effects loop and foot switchable channels (footswitch not included).

The difference between the two is simple enough. Powered monitors have their own power amp built in, which means you don't have to connect them to a standalone one. If your main PA speakers are connected to a power amp and you've got spare outputs, then an unpowered (or passive) monitor makes sense, since you can just add it in.
